Hi Zenna,

I was just reviewing the Excel document you sent previously, and it looks like it contains two data sets (one in grey and white and the other, below it, in blue). Can you clarify what the difference is between these two data sets? Are these the results of two different searches? Also, can you please provide the disposition codes (what do they stand for)?

Thanks!

Hello!

Yes, If you scroll to the right a bit, one data set represents incidents and the other cases. Incidents do not require reports where cases do. And, yes! The disposition codes are:

AA: Arrests
CC: Cancelled
FF: Field Investigation
GG: Gone on Arrival
II: Information Only
KK: Community Policing
LL: Follow Up
MM: False Alarm
NN: No Police Action
OO: Refer to other Agency
PP: Paper Service
RR: Report Taken
SS: Assistance Rendered
TT: Ticket Issued
UU: Unfounded
XX: Assist other Agency
ZZ: No Units Available

I hope that clears things up.

Zenna

Got it! Thanks so much for the speedy reply! Last question: Is there a difference between incidents and cases from a policing perspective? Like, are "incidents" basically any time police respond to a call, and cases are where someone was arrested?
