A Roadmap to the Accreditation Process

November 2011

The purpose of this document is to provide those agencies seeking Accreditation with an overview and understanding of the Accreditation program offered by WASPC; and to provide an understanding of the policies under which Accreditation occurs.

Accreditation

The purpose of law enforcement agency accreditation is to professionalize the law enforcement industry by providing a review process for agencies to be certified as operating under industry best practices and standards. In 1976 the Association was directed by the Washington State Legislature to develop standards and goals for Washington State Law Enforcement. The Association has maintained an operational accreditation program since that time.

The current accreditation program was updated in 2007 and is overseen by the Accreditation Committee, Accreditation Commission, and Board of Directors. The membership wanted the program to reflect the highest professional standards of policing yet be financially accessible to any member agency that desired to earn it. The main differences between previous WASPC accreditation programs and the current program are:

1. All standards are "have-to practices" as determined by law or a universal practice within the profession;
2. The number of standards is less than 150 but all are mandatory for every agency; and,
3. The dominant verification method by the on-site assessors includes the examination of written documents, observations and interviews with the agency employees.

The Committee is responsible for maintaining accreditation standards, directing assigned WASPC staff and oversight of the program. The Commission is responsible for reviewing accreditation on-site reports and making recommendations to the Board of Directors. The Board of Directors is responsible for conferring accreditation.

Benefits of Accreditation Include:

- To increase public confidence in the agency;
- To increase credibility;
- To provide systemized agency self-assessment;
- To broaden perspectives;
- To intensify administrative and operational effectiveness;
- To ensure recruitment, selection, and promotion processes are fair and equitable;
- To strengthen understanding of agency policies and procedures by agency personnel;
- To improve agency morale and pride;
- To decrease susceptibility to litigation and costly civil court settlements;
- To potentially reduce liability insurance costs;
- To provide state and local recognition of professional competence.

Overview of Accreditation Process:

The Accreditation process occurs in seven phases: Interest and Contract; Self-Assessment; On-Site Assessment and Evaluation; Accreditation Commission Review; Executive Board Review; Award; and Re-Accreditation.

In the interest and contract phase, agencies work with the Association's management services coordinator to develop guidelines for the accreditation process, sign a contract, and submit payment. The contract establishes a one year timeline for the agency to schedule an onsite assessment. There are two types of fees associated with the WASPC Accreditation program, application fees and on-site costs. The application fee for all agencies is $100. On-site assessment fees are invoiced after the on-site assessment and vary by department and availability of assessors. Agencies seeking Accreditation agree to pay the travel costs associated with bringing in assessors from around the state. Every effort is made to utilize assessors that are regionally close to the requesting agency to help minimize these costs.

In the self-assessment phase, agencies assess their ability to meet the 140 standards addressing twenty major law enforcement areas as established by the Association's Accreditation Committee:

- Goals and Objectives
- Role and Authority
- Use of Force
- Management, Staffing, Organization and Utilization of Personnel
- Records Management
- Information Technology
- Unusual Occurrences
- Health and Safety
- Fiscal Management
- Recruitment and Selection
- Training
- Performance Evaluation
- Code of Conduct
- Internal Affairs
- Patrol Function
- Traffic Function
- Investigative Function
- Evidence and Property Control Function
- Prisoner Security
- Agency Facilities

During the self-assessment phase, agencies gather proof on their ability to meet the standards and proof of the agency's institutionalization of said standards.

During the on-site assessment and evaluation phase, the on-site assessment team, a group of volunteer assessors from law enforcement agencies across Washington State, confirms the agency's ability to meet the WASPC accreditation standards. The assessors review agency files for policies and procedures as well as documentation showing the agency is operating under the direction of those policies and procedures. Assessors may also interview agency members to gather additional information. As part of the WASPC on-site process, assessors are encouraged to note areas where improvement can be made.

Suggestions for improvement are compiled in the final on-site report. If an agency is unable to meet an accreditation standard at the time of the on-site assessment, a 60 day extension may be requested for the agency to make appropriate changes and submit proof to the WASPC management services coordinator. Non-compliance issues must be reconciled to the satisfaction of the Management Services Coordinator before the agency's presentation to the Accreditation Commission. An agency must resolve non-compliance or 'wet ink' issues at least 30 days prior to the Commission meeting at which the Commission considers the agency's accreditation.

In the Accreditation Commission review phase, the on-site review team leader, the chief administrator of the agency seeking accreditation, and the departmental accreditation manager may appear before the Accreditation Commission for determination if they have met the standards and that the on-site review team has done a complete job. The Accreditation Commission forwards its recommendations to the WASPC Board of Directors for final consideration.

In the Executive Board review phase, the WASPC Executive Board reviews the recommendations by the Accreditation Commission and issues a final decision.

In the Award phase of the accreditation process, the agency is presented with a plaque, for successfully achieving the professional standards as outlined in the Washington Association of Sheriffs & Police Chiefs Law Enforcement Accreditation Program. Presentation of accreditation plaques occurs at the Association's semi-annual training conferences. The Association also acknowledges CALEA accredited agencies as having met the necessary standards and awards recognition to those agencies.

During the reaccreditation phase, agencies repeat the entire process. The reaccreditation process is significantly less cumbersome if agencies institutionalize the accreditation philosophy and keep agency policies, procedures and records up to date. To maintain accreditation, agencies must be reaccredited every four years. For additional information on the reaccreditation process refer to Accreditation Committee Responsibilities and Procedures #9 on page 12.

Chief Executive Considerations for Accreditation Success:

1. Commitment is everything. You must be totally committed to the effort and the outcome because, like everything that has meaning, the accreditation process is not easy and it will take hard work by a number of people. Every agency has a pace to achieve accreditation and the time it takes for an agency to become accredited is different from agency to agency. One agency that “lived accreditation” completed accreditation program in 45 days, while another agency may take several months or years, especially if infrastructure changes are needed.

2. Download the WASPC Standards from the WASPC website. The accreditation standards are updated annually with a new edition published on July 1st each year. Standards are updated by the Accreditation Committee and approved by the Executive Board, after membership discussion, to reflect the evolution of the profession and to keep the program current. The agency is held to the version of the standards in effect at the time the accreditation contract is signed with WASPC.
3. Scan the standards for your own familiarity and to get a snapshot of the expectations. It is very likely that you are already doing the vast majority of standards but reviewing the standards will provide a foundation for your questions and give you a good impression of the areas that need addressing.
4. Plant seeds. Plant the idea of accreditation with the key leadership and opinion-makers within the agency. This will likely prevent surprise and initial resistance.
5. Keep the elected officials informed and solicit their commitment. Accreditation is often widely accepted, if not popular, with elected officials because it is easy for them to comprehend. Meeting highest industry standards makes sense to elected officials and the public.
6. Contact WASPC. Tell the Management Services Coordinator that you want to pursue accreditation and you will learn of the resources that are available to you. When you become committed to the process, sign a contract with the WASPC Management Services Coordinator and that will commit you to which edition of the standards you will be assessed on.
7. Find a Mentor. Nearly all of the currently accredited agencies will provide any assistance necessary to help you in your process. There is no need to do this alone. The WASPC Management Services Coordinator can help you identify a Mentor and a current mentor list is available on the WASPC website.
8. Identify an Accreditation Manager. This is the point person for your agency’s accreditation effort. Successful Accreditation Managers: (1) Know the agency inside and out; (2) Have a track history of getting projects done that meet your expectations; (3) Are team leaders who can delegate, motivate others, create teams, and get tasks done; (4) Are willing to learn, ask questions, and find resources; and (5) Are committed to seeing the process through to completion. The surest way to stall your accreditation effort is to change managers during the process. Some agencies have used their “up and coming” leaders as Accreditation Managers. Who you pick as the Accreditation Manager will set the tone for this effort. History has shown that selecting the “right person” for the job is better than using someone temporarily on light duty or assisting someone who has no interest in accreditation.

9. Train the Accreditation Manager. Training for Accreditation Managers is offered by WASPC during the year. The next level of training for the Accreditation Manager is to work as an accreditation on-site assessor for WASPC. Just having an Accreditation Manager witness an on-site assessment is an excellent training experience. The WASPC Management Services Coordinator can assist you with this opportunity.
10. Present the accreditation program to your command and supervisory staff, and then include the union leadership and all agency staff. Successful accreditation processes include all the components of the agency through the process of information sharing and delegating standards out to employees. Though it may seem easier to have the accreditation process be “top down” and completely done by the Accreditation Manager, the result fails to lift up the whole agency and the process becomes only an event, rather than a way of doing business.
11. Policy Modification Authority. The Accreditation Manager you select will recommend changes to department policy and/or practice in order to institutionalize Accreditation into your agency. Streamline the process by which policy can be modified to meet the standards and train your personnel to the new standards. If the process for modification of policy and/or practice is too complex, the accreditation process may bog down and stall.

Accreditation Managers Considerations for Success:

1. Assess where the gaps are. This is determining where the agency’s practices and policies may need work. Though it can be done by the Accreditation Manager it is often done more successfully and quickly by a small group of supervisors or field training officers. The gap assessment becomes the central task list of attaining accreditation.
2. Access a Mentor through the WASPC Mentorship Program. Establish a relationship with a mentor through the WASPC Mentorship Program. The mentors available on the list are from agencies that have gone through the Accreditation program and can provide great insights into what is expected, file and proof preparation and Accreditation Processes.
3. Start a tracking system. Successful accreditation managers create an excellent tracking system to keep track of the standards that are done, ones that are in progress and who is working on them.
4. Research policy and practice to meet the standard. Though it is very likely that most of standards will not need any work on your part because you are already doing them, when you find a “gap” that needs to be filled, find the best policy or practice to close the gap. Borrow and modify policies from other accredited agencies. Do not “reinvent the wheel”.

5. Implement. New written policy needs to be reviewed, approved and trained on. This may take longer than you think. Some agencies use a quiz format to make sure the transfer of learning, from the policy book to the employee, actually happened. This also makes for an excellent proof for your file.
6. Focus on performance, not paper, to meet the standards. This means that the on-site assessors will verify compliance of many standards by questioning the staff. Therefore, employees will need to know your policies and practices. This is why the training piece is so vital.
7. Create a standardized system of file construction. Some standards will need files for the on-site assessors to review. Experienced accreditation managers create a standardized way of constructing the files that are easy for the assessors to use. One idea is to create a CD that has the accreditation standard, the assigned employee who the assessors can talk to and a hyperlink to the agency’s policy manual that addresses the standard. There is a model for this available with the WASPC Management Services Coordinator but may also be available through the WASPC Mentorship Program. Other agencies chose to create an actual file folder for each standard to hold necessary documents. Just like policies and practices, how you decide to make your files is completely up to the agency.
8. Keep accreditation on the front burner. Do this by imposing short time lines for tasks and having many people involved in the work. Keep it on the agenda for all staff and team meetings. Consider using a large bulletin board that is accessible to all employees to show the progress of the effort. Something always comes up. Plan for the distraction while not losing momentum on accreditation.
9. Do an in-house assessment exercise. Take a team of supervisors and go through all the standards, interviewing employees, observing practices and looking at files and see if all the standards are met.
10. Participate in another agency's mock or actual on-site assessment. One of the best ways to learn what to expect is to experience it as an assessor yourself. Coordinate with the WASPC Management Services Coordinator or your WASPC Mentor to participate in an assessment.
11. Do a Mock Assessment. A mock on-site assessment may be set up by WASPC (at a cost to the agency) through the office of the Management Services Coordinator or by the agency's accreditation manager (no WASPC fee). A mock on-site should be conducted by experienced accreditation managers. The accreditation manager's partnering mentor or a neighboring accreditation manager would be a good resource in identifying accreditation managers willing to assist with a mock on-site. The value of the mock assessment is to find the “blind spots” that are often overlooked and to provide you with an opportunity to fix issues that may be identified prior to your on-site.

What to Expect in the On-site Assessment Process:

1. Cement the date with WASPC. The dates are mutually agreed upon between you and WASPC. Give yourself enough time to be successful, but short enough time that it stays a priority. Typically, on-site assessments take one day.
2. WASPC will assign a team leader. The team leader will be looking for opportunities to find compliance with the standard but the integrity of the standard will not be compromised.
3. Parking for Assessors. Some agencies have very limited general parking opportunities and agencies may find it beneficial to reserve parking for assessors.
4. Provide general information to each assessor. Folders containing maps, photos of the command staff, telephone numbers, locations of offices and restrooms is helpful. Consider providing: an organizational chart, a brief history of the agency, and what the lunch arrangements are. (Some agencies will order-in a working lunch for the assessors from a menu.)
5. Designate a conference room for the assessors. A space that can comfortably handle 8 people with lap top computers, surfaces to spread out files, and light snacks is appropriate.
6. Provide name tags and access methods for the building and the security perimeter.
7. Start the on-site assessment with introductions of key staff members and a tour of the facility. A greeting by the elected official or top administrator is often appropriate. This answers a lot of questions and gets the assessment off to a good start.
8. Have enough staff on hand to answer questions without impacting the services to the public. Avoid having the assessors wait for long periods of time for staff members to be available. Some assessors may want to do a short (1 hour or so) ride along with patrol personnel to interview them and to watch them at work.
9. The team leader will keep you informed. One of the key roles of the WASPC team leader is to keep the agency executive informed of the progress of the assessment.
10. Closing out the Assessment. The team leader and the assessors will provide the agency executive and any other invited agency employees with a summary of their findings. This is a great time to hear everything that the assessors found. Remember, the assessors only provide a recommendation to the Accreditation Commission about compliance with WASPC Accreditation.

11. Final Report. The team leader will compile the assessment team's final report and this will be sent to you before the Accreditation Commission meets. Review the report carefully and communicate any concerns or questions to the team leader or the WASPC Management Services Coordinator.
12. The Accreditation Commission. The Accreditation Commission will meet to consider awarding WASPC accreditation to the agency. The Commission may hear from the team leader and the WASPC Management Services Coordinator. The agency executive is encouraged to be part of the process. They may choose to speak or make an appeal about any of the assessment team's findings. If the Commission approves the report, the recommendation for accredited status will be forwarded to the Executive Board for final action.
13. WASPC Conference for the Award. The award is given at the banquet. It is appropriate that the Chief Executive and the Accreditation Manager receive the award on behalf of the agency. Many agencies will bring a contingent to the banquet and fill a table of eight. Accreditation remains in effect for four years.
14. Celebrate. Consider presenting the award plaque to your elected officials or citizens at a public meeting with the media present. The local print media are usually very good at covering these events. Consider having a reception with the agency's team and honor the Accreditation Manager for his or her work. Take the accreditation plaque on the road as a topic to speak to service organizations and neighborhood groups. Put the plaque in a prominent place for the public to see. You may want to display "State Accredited Agency" on your letterhead, business cards and patrol vehicles.
15. Be a Partner and Mentor. Use your lessons and experiences to help your neighboring agencies, continue to live the accreditation standards, and participate on assessment teams as the program continues to grow.

Accreditation Commission Responsibilities and Procedures:

The Accreditation Commission meets during the WASPC Spring and Fall Conferences to review accreditation reports submitted by the Management Services Coordinator. During the Commission meeting, the Management Services Coordinator and/or Team Leader from the Assessment reports on the status of the Accreditation On-sites that have been conducted since the last conference.

The Commission is comprised of two Chiefs of Police from accredited agencies; two Sheriffs from accredited agencies and three accreditation Managers from accredited agencies, provided, that the Chief Executive Officers of those managers are not on the Commission. The WASPC Executive Board makes the appointments to the Commission. Terms are for three years and are on staggered expirations so as to provide process consistency and to ensure experience on the Commission. A list of current Commission members is available on the WASPC website. The chairperson of the Commission is selected from the Commission Members and serves in that capacity for one year. The WASPC Management Services Coordinator provides staff support for the Commission.

The Commission is not a file assessment entity, and as such, will not review files for compliance of standards. The Commission reviews the reports of the Assessment Team to determine that they have followed the process and completed the necessary reports and answered any unresolved issues or findings.

In the event that there is a dispute between the Assessment Team and the Agency seeking accreditation that cannot be resolved through the Management Services Coordinator, the Commission will hear appeals concerning compliance/non-compliance with the standards set forth in the WASPC Standards Manual.

Once the process has been verified and any appeals resolved, the Commission makes recommendation to the WASPC Executive Board to convey Accreditation Status upon the requesting agency.

Accreditation Committee Responsibilities and Procedures:

The Accreditation Committee meets during the WASPC Conferences but may also meet periodically during the year to review standards, provide training or to review assessment schedules and procedures. To ensure that the Accreditation Program remains a viable gauge of professional standards, the Committee reviews and recommends updates to standards to the Executive Board. Additionally, the Committee is responsible for maintaining and updating the Mentorship Program; training Assessors, and coordinating and updating On-site Accreditation Assessments and directing WASPC staff.

The Committee philosophy is:

1. Accreditation is a voluntary program.
2. Accreditation is intended to be the minimum professional standards for Washington State law enforcement agencies.
3. Accreditation should be accessible and affordable to any Washington State law enforcement agency.
4. All standards are mandatory and apply to all agencies. Every part of the standard must be met, just like the elements of a crime when reading a statute. Some standards have multiple parts or bullets – each must be covered.

5. The origins of the mandatory standards are: requirements by state or federal law, universal recommendations of practice by the WASPC Loaned Executive Management Assistance Program (LEMAP), universal standards from other state accreditation programs, or as proposed by the WASPC membership. The threshold to become a mandatory standard is the “necessity of practice by every agency” or “universal have-to.” Standards are reviewed and adopted using a formal and accessible process. Standards also are derived from WASPC Model Policies which are recommended from the WASPC Model Policies Committee to the Executive Board.
6. The standards are not intended to dictate what practice, policy or guideline that an agency should do or have; only that the agency’s product is reasonable, appropriate and defensible as it meets the standard’s requirements.
7. Purpose statements in standards are for guidance and clarification only; they are not required, but agencies should expect the standards’ requirements to be interpreted according to the listed purpose.
8. New and updated standards are published on July 1st of each year. It is recommended that an agency comply with the most current standards at their on-site but an agency that is undergoing accreditation and under contract is responsible for the standards in effect at the time they signed the contract with WASPC. During Reaccreditation, the agency will be held responsible for the most current standards. This is to help ensure that the agency is institutionalizing accreditation and remaining current to law enforcement best practices.
9. During the initial agency on-site, proofs from the most current year will be inspected for compliance. Agencies seeking reaccreditation will be expected to provide proofs of compliance from the period between their last accreditation on-site and the reaccreditation on-site. They should not be re-using proofs that were used in the previous accreditation on-site. In the event a standard calls for compliance with an audit or the production of an annual report the most current copy of the audit/annual report will suffice as proof. It is not necessary for an agency to put four years of proofs of compliance into a folder for reaccreditation purposes. The assessors are looking for demonstrations of compliance, not proofs from every year for every standard.
10. Accreditation is available to agencies that are members of WASPC (unless approved by the WASPC Executive Board) because the funding support of the program comes from the membership.
11. The duration of an agency’s accreditation is four years.

Commonly Asked Questions

Q: What is the cost?

A: WASPC strives to provide a valuable and affordable accreditation program. There are two costs associated with the program; an application fee of $100; and staff costs of conducting the on-site assessment, billable at $50/hour. The on-site is usually only one day.

Funding assistance is available through the Association of WA Cities, WA Cities Insurance Authority, and WA Counties Risk Pool.

Q: How labor intensive is the program?

A: The process may be challenging and take considerable time, effort and determination on the part of agency seeking accreditation. The level of difficulty ultimately depends on an agency's level of preparedness going into the accreditation process. Members of the Accreditation Commission and Committee as well as WASPC Staff are available to offer guidance to agencies seeking accreditation.

Q: Can I review the standards before committing to a contract?

A: Absolutely! Standards are on the WASPC website for your review.

Q: Is there someone who has gone through the accreditation process I can work with?

A: Yes, WASPC has established a mentorship program, putting established accreditation managers in contact with individuals new to the process. A roster of accreditation mentors is available on the WASPC website.

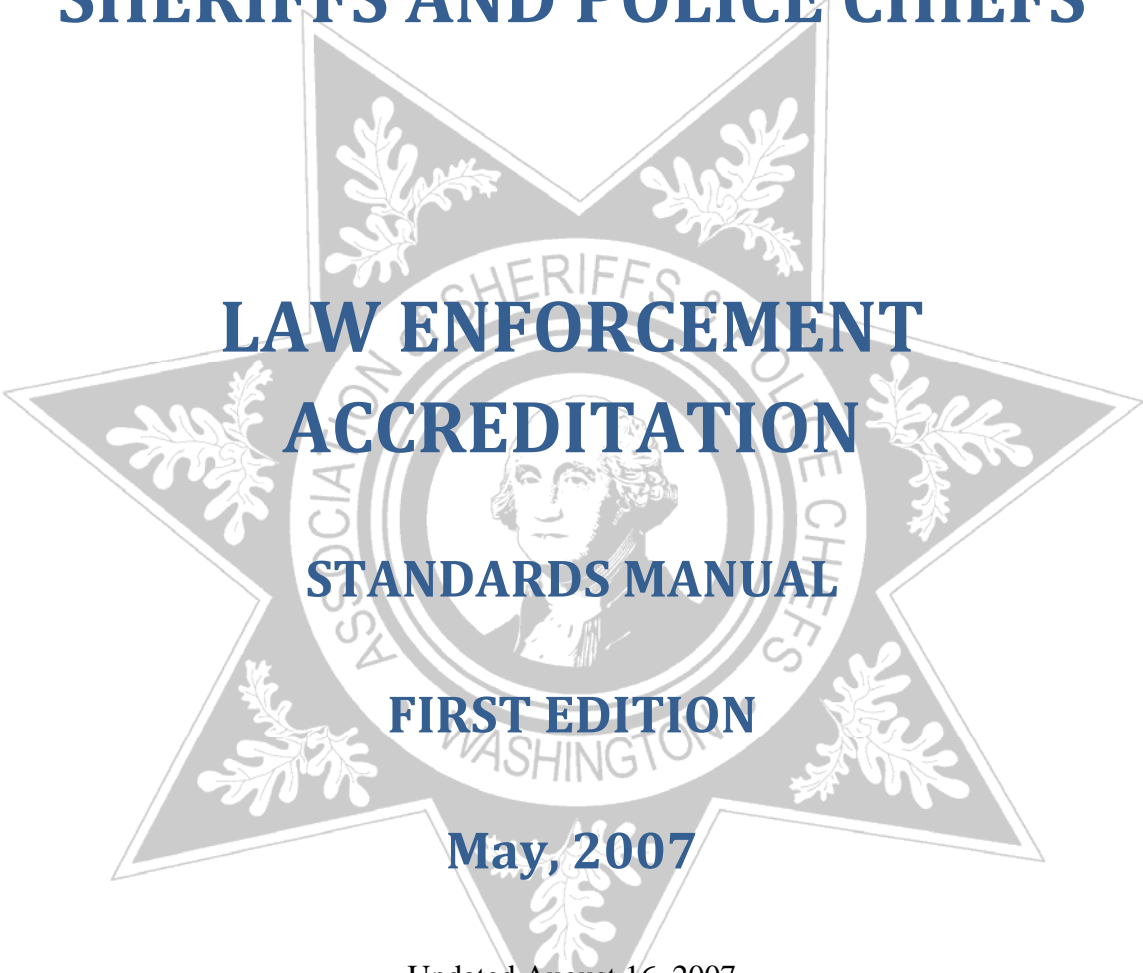

Q: What if I am too small to get accredited?

A: Standards are designed to be Law Enforcement “Best Practices” for all Washington state agencies – large or small. In fact, one long accredited agency is only 8 sworn.

Q: What if our department is a contract City Police under a Sheriff’s Office?

A: The contract police will be treated as a “stand-alone” agency and can apply for accreditation so long as it can show compliance with all the standards by itself and/or in conjunction with the home agency.

PREFACE

This Standards Manual is the cornerstone publication of the Washington Association of Sheriffs and Police Chiefs law enforcement accreditation program. The standards are dynamic, that is they are constantly being reviewed, updated, added to, or deleted as necessary to ensure contemporary standards and practices.

It is the intent of the Washington Association of Sheriffs and Police Chiefs that the standards in this manual speak to the “what” should be done and leaves the “how” to be done to the agencies as they prepare for accreditation. The manual consists of standards that are designed to provide flexibility to all law enforcement agencies, regardless of type, size or structure.

Other publications are under development that will outline the accreditation process, provide information on how to successfully negotiate the self-assessment phase, and outline the roles and responsibilities of accreditation assessors. Additional information on law enforcement accreditation in Washington State can be accessed on the web site for the Washington Association of Sheriffs and Police Chiefs at www.waspc.org.
